

A Sad Farewell

It is with a very heavy heart that we have to inform you that Mrs Morris (known to most just as 'Gill') has announced that she will be retiring at the end of this term.

Many of you will not remember a time when Gill was not here. She has fulfilled many roles since the start of her career in 1995, at which time the school was known as Oaktrees Community Primary School. All of us, parents, pupils and staff alike, are going to greatly miss her support, guidance and encouragement which she always seems to have in abundance.

Gill has worked tirelessly on behalf of the school and its pupils, always going the extra mile, quite literally at times when she has collected pupils during difficult times and driven them to and from school ensuring they did not miss out on their education. As well as being dedicated to the pupils, Gill has helped many of our parents by facilitating pathways that have enabled them to make positive changes having a far reaching impact on their family lives.

We will all miss Gill immensely and, whilst we can replace the service she has given for the past 22 years, we will never be able to replace her.

On a slightly happier note, Mr Morris, whom we are also indebted to for the time he has freely given to the school, will be very happy to have his wife join him in retirement!
